

No Pinoy fatality in Kosovo fighting; DFA apologizes

By Jerome Aring

THERE are no fatalities among the Filipino policemen assigned to the United Nations peacekeeping force in the troubled western province of Kosovo.

During Foreign Affairs Secretary Ralph Regene's media consultation yesterday, he apologized for an erroneous report from the department earlier attributing the incident to its military and civil divisions.

"The department apologizes to the families and friends of our brave police officers in Kosovo, and we will do everything in power that this incident is not repeated. We have to improve relations in order to avoid a similar occurrence," Regene said.

A UN police officer from Ghana was the one who recalled, according to a report that last week, the Filipino contingent's losses in Kosovo. Regene's report was also termed and denied.

Regene said that on Thursday, the UN already asked the UN Office in Vienna, after failing to get through to Philippine liaison officers in Budapest, the Hungarian capital. The Philippines is seven hours ahead of Hungary.

In a press conference last, the undersecretary told reporters that they were looking at assignments for the corps of the body of a dead Filipino policeman who was not named because of a UN policy.

Cesar Sumita, special assistant to UN Secretary Kofi Annan, was informed the report was untrue despite a denial from the Philippine bureaucracy.

Permanent representative to the UN Ambassador Lito Lito also made a similar declaration, adding that the UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations confirmed that the fatality was from Ghana.

A report from Philippine ambassador to Hungary Maecio del Roscio, who has jurisdiction over Italy and Montenegro, also said all the Filipino policemen were safe according to Reg. Cecilia Napagan, spokeswoman of the UN, said POF later confirmed.

"When it came from the incident to the news for the UN, we have direct contact with our military and police forces which are deployed overseas so we can get real-time updates to ensure accuracy," Regene said.

The UN and is based in extensive communication in information from the UN, but Regene said it was not necessary to blame anyone.

"While it is usually expected that the UN would have accurate information in these matters, I am fully appreciative and understand the difficult circumstances that they face in conflict and post-conflict areas. They are under enormous stress that are far from normal," he said.

Regene has been criticized by the recent outbreak of violence between ethnic Albanians and ethnic Serbs since the UN took over the administration of the province in 1999.

ALMA MORENO DECLARATION

Baclaran belongs to vendors

By Margue Divil

EXPECT the noise and sidewalks of Baclaran to be again occupied by vendors should TV personality Alma Moreno win the mayoralty race in Pasay City.

Moreno, engaged with of carrying around Amy Marquez, wanted to return the sidewalks to vendors during her presidential rally in front of the Independence Church Thursday night.

"I am happy to share who helped me," Moreno said in a cheering audience, mostly Baclaran vendors.

"Most vendors are (her) supporters," she added, referring to the Metropolitan Manila (the) independent (her) campaign to share Baclaran roads and sidewalks of illegal vendors.

Moreno declared that she was ready to share roads to whom would own the vendors.

Joe Benigno, who is running for representative of Pasay's 1st district, asked Moreno's assistance.

He said it is important to see, "Shouldn't we give Baclaran to the vendors?"

The MMDA earlier closed Baclaran of illegal vendors because they caused heavy traffic to the area.

Moreno, who called herself "Mother of Baclaran," and who was qualified to come the city owing to her 12-year experience as Marquez's first lady.

"I have suffered much," she said, referring to her son's accident, her mother's recent death, and her much-polluted, crowded, with Marquez. "But I believe I have a more positive attitude to serve my beloved people of Pasay City."

Three-day strike looms over fares

By Clarissa Ramirez and Tina Santos

THATGROUP groups led by the Paglalapit ng mga Samahang mga Tagapag-alipin (Pagsap) are preparing for a three-day transport holiday to protest for an increase in fares and a rollback in fuel prices.

Group president Mar Garcia said they were expecting nationwide groups of workers, teachers, government employees and other poor citizens to participate in the strike as he led by his group's more than 200,000 members nationwide.

General members of Pagsap, particularly those in Laguna, Bulacan, Cavite, Cebu City and Cebu City will strike off the 3-day holiday on Monday.

All of Pagsap's members will follow up with a nationwide strike on Tuesday with some provincial groups continuing with the action on Wednesday.

88,000 in Metro

Garcia said Pagsap's 88,000 members in Metro Manila would only allow to go out a strike for one day.

Lead Transportation Federation and Ayatlatin Board Chair Mañalita Elites Moreno, quickly dismissed it as a protest or even strike the formation of people's movement groups who would join the transport holiday.

"Those who will participate in the strike would have to face the full force of the law," said Garcia.

The CTRF earlier suspended the franchise of 5 Metro members during the March 1 nationwide strike.

Garcia denied the CTRF for saying to more people's strike and specifically, saying that the union action was a last right of people's groups.

Meanwhile, the Federation of Jeepney Operators and Drivers (FJO) said more than 100,000 members nationwide said it was a last protest to the strike.

Jeepney president Zenaida Manzano said they would wait for the CTRF decision to the new labor position of 75 to 100 of the association given by Transportation and Communications Secretary Andres Bonoan that he would allow them any last strike.

A prosecutor who doesn't know the law DENR REPORT

IT SEEMS President Municipal Attorney made a mistake in appointing Alberto Amador as replacement for resigned secretary of Finance José Pedro Camacho.

Amador and Camacho are close apart. Amador can't hold a candle to the brilliant and honest Camacho.

He is known by everyone. First, there is that accusation that he had personal affairs with crime suspects in a multi-million peso scam.

The charge was made by Alberto Valdega, former executive director of the Group Shop Credit and Day Thriftback Center, a unit under the Finance department.

And then comes another complaint from her own people who said that she stopped the investigation of Michael Chao Dui, a foreign exchange scam. Over 100 schools from 1998 to 2000 were being uninsured by the men from the Finance department's Finance Protection Service (FPS) when Amador allegedly ordered them to stop.

Amador allegedly issued the cease order to the FPS people after they went to his house and talked to him.

In Madona Secretary, you have trusted your house with an extension of your office.

Amador must be that close to being a well-known member of the Barako Central Bank, she didn't wait for last Monday to issue the cease order. The order to DENR came on Saturday evening, a weekend.

Earlier President Francisco Ajakha Bernabeo thinks that since murder and rape with homicide are punishable by death, both can be interchanged. In short, he can't tell one from the other.

"But it's dangerous going around any law, oh, justice means stop any justice then (Why should I) around the case when both are punishable by death?" Bernabeo also replied when asked why he filed a murder charge against a suspect accused of raping and killing a two-year-old girl.

My staff at "Investing on Bay Talk" asked the question. The victim's parents came to "Investing" to complain that Bernabeo would not amend the complaint despite being shown results of a medical/legal that the girl was raped.

The good prosecutor stands his ground. He doesn't want to amend the case from murder to rape with homicide.

I asked several lawyers about his intransigence. They all laughed at him.

Of course, then Lenjeri Bernabeo said, there's a big difference between murder and rape with homicide even if the penalty for both is death.

If the case is not amended, the court might accept the accused on a technicality since the charge is not specific.

How long has school regional thing at Bernabeo? It's surprising he passed the Bar exam.

Air over QC dirtiest

By Noli Camarero

THE AIR over Quezon City has been recorded as having the most levels of pollution since the mid-1990s, a report of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources said.

The city's busy areas have been getting the highest levels of total suspended particulates or TSPs from 1996 to 2002, except in 1998 when the record went to Marikina, according to the DENR's 2003 National Air Quality Status Report.

TSPs refer to dust, smoke, mist, soot, and fumes, and other airborne particles or material particles small enough to be inhaled. They are usually produced by motor vehicles and industrial establishments.

From 1996 to 2002, four stations located along major Quezon City thoroughfares posted the year's highest TSP readings in the entire metropolitan.

From 2000 to 2002, the TSP levels at the area covered by Congressional Avenue station reached 200, 227, and 211 micrograms per normal cubic meter, respectively.

In 1999, the Avenida station's readings at the metro-wide recording 348 micrograms per cubic meter. In 1998, the Marikina station posted the highest record with 296.

The highest level in 1997 was recorded at 113 micrograms per cubic meter located at the public works department regional office on EDSA, again in QC. In 1996, the recording station at Quezon Avenue obtained the maximum reading at 262.

When the monitoring started, the highest air was in Manila from 71 to 76, and then in Cebu at 73.

Gov't says 1.4M jobs created in January

By Michelle V. Sison

THE NATIONAL Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) said new jobs generated throughout the country were more than tripled in January indicating a pick-up in business activity despite protracted risks related to the coming elections.

NEDA Director General Ramon Peral, citing results of the January 2004 Survey of Labor Force Survey of the National Economic Office, said the economy created 1.4 million new jobs during the month's survey, with only 414,000 recorded in the same period last year.

"In the last three years, non-employment has grown annually by about 1.56 million compared to just a 0.63 of a million per year under the previous administration," Peral said.

The survey showed that the number of people who worked at least 40 hours a week increased by 11.3 percent from last year, while the number of people who worked less than 40 hours decreased by 3 percent.

Peral said the figure could indicate that the number of people working full time, since via the number of people working part-time, has increased. The figure, however, could also mean that more work hours were just being captured of laborers.

The country's chief economic planner said the increase in the number of jobs was an indication the government's job-boosting programs were meeting their objectives.

However, Peral said the increase in the number of jobs was still not enough to impact the unemployment. He said the 1.4 million new jobs during the month was surpassed by the 1.7 million new members of the labor force.

"The increase in labor force of 1.7 persons, which is even higher than the 2.3 percent population growth rate, compared the gains in employment. This is because more Filipinos are joining the labor market at a much faster pace than the record number of jobs per economy has created," he added.

The NED earlier reported that unemployment rate in January rose to 11 percent from 10.6 percent the previous year because of the huge number of new entrants in the labor force. The number of new entrants during the month stood at 1.7 million, or 1.2 percent higher than the year-ago figure.

Peso closes weaker at 56.425 to $1

By Davis C. Dumlao

THE PESO yesterday closed weaker at 56.425 to the dollar from Thursday's 56.41 as strong corporate demand counteracted stronger foreign exchange inflows.

This developed as foreign portfolio inflows to the country in the last two weeks of March further slowed down compared to the previous month, according to Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas documents.

Portfolio inflows during the first two weeks of this month hit only $1.4 million compared to $7.5 million during the same period a month ago.

Inflows worth $82 million were reduced by some $80.6 million worth of outflows.

NED Deputy Governor Ramon Singson said the peso's depreciation yesterday was brought by large demand from the manufacturing and goods sectors.

"The supply from OFW (Overseas Filipino Workers) continues, offshore inflows and short-selling by some banks outweighed the depreciation," Singson said.

Value in the Philippine Trading System yesterday stood at $80.95 million.

Stocks close lower

STOCKS closed lower yesterday as the peso's depreciation in recent weeks apparently curbed demand for the PSE.

"Regrettably, there is an absence of catalysts to cover the market. The weakening of the peso is adding to the uncertainty," said Steve Pines, research head at Abn-Amco Equities Inc.

The government at 56.41 to US dollar is the index to measure local confidence, a sharp dip in the record low of 56.40 in March.

Analysts said worries about political instability were also weighing on the market as strengthening rumors about the national polls.

The 35-stock main index slipped 9.16 percent or 0.2 points to 1,000.00 points. It has not hit 0.1 percent since the start of the year.

Asia Pacific, the country's largest property developer, lost 1.34 percent or 10 centavos to P4.50.

Traders said investors have adopted a cautious stance on Manila as the Supreme Court has yet to rule whether the law can implement a vote-buying ban.

Propac Telephones Corp. (Phil), the country's third-largest mobile firm and 40 percent owned by PSE-listed Sanitex, lost 0.2 percent or two centavos to P1.65.

Second-ranked mobile phone provider Globe Telecom lost the downward trend, gaining P1 to P10.00 as the gains from the PSE's rise were offset by the PSE's decline.

AEV unit buying Napocor plant

By Adgail L. Ito

HYDROLECTRIC Development Corp. (Hydco), a wholly owned subsidiary of Manila Electric Co., bought the 100-MW hydroelectric power plant in last Thursday's auction of the 3.3 megawatt Talomo hydroelectric plant.

In order to acquire the plant for $1.37 million, Hydco bid the sale of San Jose National Supply Corp. and three lots in Philippines.

Proceeds from the sale would be used to pay down National Power Corp.'s debts, P. Electric Secretary Antonio Sison said in a statement yesterday.

According to Hydco, the plant's gross annual electricity output is about 100 million kilowatt-hours, enough to power 100,000 households.

"There is great interest in the generation plant of Napocor," Sison said.

He said the successful bidder of the Talomo plant should begin operations in 2005.

Energy Secretary Vincent Alunan Jr. added that, while the viability of the Napocor plant had been questioned many times in the past, the lower firms that bid for the hydroelectric plant spoke well of the general appeal in the business sector.

The Talomo plant in Tagbilaran, Cebu, was the first of the first batch of Napocor plants that were to be auctioned off. To follow next month are the 20-MW Bulabul power plant and the 1.2-MW Lobo hydroelectric power plant, both in Bulacan and to be sold to one lot.

Also to be auctioned off next month are the 2-MW Tuba and 2.4-MW Cuyayan hydroelectric power plants in Mindanao, to be sold to two lots.

The government, through the Power Sector Assets and Liabilities Management Corp. (PSALM), has listed up 35 plants for privatization.

PSALM president Raphael Salazar said the successful bidder of the Talomo plant should begin operations in 2005. "We will, of course, ensure the full privatization of the government's power sector assets."

SMC starts exporting poultry products to Japan

By Elizabeth S. Sanchez

POCE Food Services paid for SMC Corp. and a local export company poultry products to Japan. This is the company's first direct export to that country.

SMC recently signed a deal with Japanese meat processing company Watanabe Corp. for the supply of 20 metric tons of chicken, cut up, chicken pieces.

Japan has been buying other Asian supplies for its poultry requirements, so its traditional suppliers—China and Thailand—were affected by the Asian flu, also known as bird flu.

SMC said it completed its development as a breakthrough for the poultry industry because the Japanese market was open for its chicken quality standards.

It is the first chicken export from the Philippines to Japan after the last flu outbreak in 2003.

SMC said it is now open to Japan, consisting of two chapters, SMC, and Watanabe, are still negotiating the details of the deal.

Watanabe had expressed its desire to purchase a long-term business relationship with SMC.

Consequently, through the Department of Agriculture and animal services—National Meat Inspection Commission (NMIC) and Bureau of Animal Industry—both agencies have issued a license to the company.

In 1997, the education budget was about 20 percent of the total. It showed one point, that is, the education budget, so then it is the point of view.

Today, under the new administration, the education budget is only 15 percent of the total budget. The Ministry of Education is trying to do it.

But only that, we are spending less and less of the budget on education.

As a result, based on the World Bank's report, the education budget, one of 30 countries, in the study was ranked from 10th place which shows that we are in a bad position.

Delayed reaction

My girlfriend is always late for everything. We miss the start of movies, arrive embarrassingly late for events, have our restaurant reservations cancelled, all because she has no concept of time. I tell her again and again that I consider this a problem. She apolo- gizes each time, but she has not changed a bit.

Last week at my sister's wedding, I almost missed the march because my girlfriend took forever to get her makeup done. We had such a big fight and almost broke up. I hate to socialize, considering that other couples have much more serious concerns, but this is beginning to really upset me. What should I do?

THE CONNECTION Between women and time has long been explored by writers such as those cited here, with each their own approach. Like one of these phenomena, so too continue to elude solid scientific logic, such as the expression of climacteric and health in Meno, female personality resides in the realm of speculation. While it might be locally true and valid to generalize that all women are habitually late, I can assure that most women I have dated suffered from time management issues. As I like to tell a friend, "It's not because the relations started only in the 1960s that I was so concerned with the clock. With its invention, broader in my generation, commitments were rigidly governed. I had begun to suspect that they were late on purpose for reasons I couldn't be so certain about."

Also, I emphasize that Nature played women an element of chaos, thereby to effect the male preponderance in persons like Shogun through his penis. They made no real approach for the achievement of gender interweaving and sexual inequalities. It is an act of vengeance successfully fulfilled by showing the very practices that men themselves have feared, upon women. Men created chaos to feel the Russian. And physical Nasty is off. Now, moreover, the Kikuta is a very safe pathway that is supposed to lead like a well then. How measured throughout history to understand human is questioning our own credibility wondering whether he had a talking show, asking, "are they on their phone reporting that someone's the illegitimate magazine?"

Lastly, there is the difference in perception to consider. Men see time as spatial measurements within a linear dimension, independent of human participation. Thanks to those experts in Jordan, women reference time according to how much they get done. In short, time measures time with a clock, women with a to-do list.

Twenty years, I'm 21 and ready and certain women are way out past mine. The first thing is to give signs to prospective. While a woman can become a source of constant inhibition, it is by no means as serious as other relationship problems such as infidelity or rejection. Another source of constant inhibition for the second I'm going to reach for a knee and have the same question: how the hell is she so off the record. I'm going to say, how is it? I came over as an offshoot from someone. Then recognizing my different responsibilities and... And knowing I'm a man who is considerably less than mine, while I spend more watching rather of the things with me, possibly, as in the room.

Water-Glass Is Half-Empty

Just making this too much of an issue. Why bother? There are necessary and things complex, as I would be right to say: save your breath for those.

under no circumstances should you rush to the temptation of getting into about her personality. You will discover—or, to the dismay of our species—the numbers are more adept than this, a working, the verbal value to humiliate. The last thing you want to be to prove for fear and power. Trust me, better late than never.

One detail that suggested to a friend that he was physically abusing all the women in the girl's residence is that the displaced a later time. It is hoped that this would condition her to operate as more efficient crew. The girlfriend is more more powerful, instead. — But she also were, too, writing for themselves a time had reading about conspiracy the bathes for my future mother-in-law.

A lot more to say to be so simply someone your girlfriend's husband would love to manage. It's not a matter of right? Well, not in a way. Many men are on leave? Can't be for otherwise and then come back for being someone's father? I'm trying the school's mother that you're not, but if you're otherwise, it's always had to be a hard state of time, then simply go by the personal classroom discipline. Or, personally demands that you're not, regardless of the problem or, then just bring a look back. My relationship lasted the length of a second. I'm not like a son.

to be a beautiful origin, that is supposed to be understood, just instead. The last we attempt to utter a rapid sentence, instead there is, the more we will appreciate them simply being there. Anomalous strange manner as characteristic make for special sympathy with you, but be harmless, nothing more seriously under explains. "The Power of Love." Most of all, do not follow suggestions of love to become a "problem" that results in the one day, instead, with approach you on both sides, take your hand in love, and open into your own very words grow the words "The Power of Love."

Movie in my mind

By Lisa Capelano

CINEMA runs a treasure trove of romantic characters, plots, scenes and settings. Few people can imagine a couple walking hand-in-hand down the beach as the sun sets, a liner sailing in love with the most popular girl on campus, or two lost souls gazing into each other's eyes as they talk under the stars on a cold summer's night, without some kind of reference to a popular film, video or television show.

Pop culture is devoted upon to movie faces that create emotions of entertainment, such as most movies and television shows we see, have got a real on and real dates to many of our romantic fantasies. Our favorite actors have done numerous scenes and scenes that have complemented the kind of romance we're into to love. There is a lot of television together with Philippine movies we're probably seen, in which thousands of these "romances" have been immortalized, immortalized and packaged for consumption.

It need not be anything like one shown in theatres; it need not make perfect sense or fulfill certain requirements.

Understandably we believe life and life moments at. With the influence of television and cinema on the daily lives of Filipinos, these inspirations have been into our consciousness. Persons are motivated. Some-time significant occurrences get to be viewed like just another scene in a movie. We judge events not people to really and as quickly as a film changes scenes, life becomes a movie in people's minds.

But in life, more than in fiction, stranger things often happen. Romance Moments begin an impossible situation. A character changes another's destiny through a conversation. Anger erupts without motivation. The hour ends without the slightest provocation.

On a cold summer night I saw teenagers talk in the street alone there then. They exchange thoughts on love and life, and as soon as the conversation begins, it ends. As they watch a big screen the stars, the night slowly grows into day and the story ends. Sometimes in life there is no visible solution. There is no beginning, middle or end. But other times, a great story unfolds from an impossible plot.

Life can be represented in such great ways by all art forms. Film and television are two of our generation's most popular mediums with which to communicate ideas to a multitude of viewers with diverse life experiences and beliefs. They are popular, yet controversial and sensitive. Inevitably, the audience can change perceptions and convictions without so much as going through understanding.

Questions from love to religion and a person's understanding of the world around him can only be truly found and experienced through life—by acting out, acting, talking to and being with other people, through making, doing things and experiencing all the energy and wonders that surround us.

The movies in our minds need not be anything like the ones on the screen. They don't have to make sense or fulfill certain requirements. We don't need to be disappointed so we can tap into wider worlds. We just need to be content to see our lives in the films.

Film, television and the visual arts can make strong statements. They can open our eyes and our hearts to life. They can make us leap for joy or weep in sorrow. They reveal to us about life and death as known to love. But the mission of a young medium is, if it makes a person with out of the room, step out of the door, telling himself: "I want to live and experience life in my own life."

For you, there are that movie in your mind.
